Bloody Revolution Breaks Out In Northern Brazil

REBELS TAKE SUPREME COURT SEVERELY JOLTS NEW DEAL

OVER NATAL IN UPRISING

Government Moves Swiftly to Check Spreading of Revolt Today

BULLETIN RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 25.—(UP)—A Communist revolution in Northern Brazil was suppressed today by federal troops, Minister of War Joad Gomez announced.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 25.—(UP)—A bloody revolution broke out in northern Brazil today under leadership of Communists whom government officials charged were plotting uprisings throughout South America.

Rebel troops were reported in control of the city of Natal. They were fighting to capture Recife (Pernambuco). The war ministry here said loyal artillery units were bombarding the rebels in Afogados, suburb of Recife.

The Brazilian government moved swiftly to check the spreading revolt. The cabinet met in special session and it was revealed President Getulio Vargas would ask the chamber of deputies for power to use "extraordinary measures."

The alleged continent-wide extent of the revolt plans was revealed in documents confiscated here by Police Captain Felinto Muller.

Luis Carlos Prestes, Communist leader for all of South America, was believed to be leading the rebellion. It was reported that the movement was intended to be a general one providing for outbreaks not only in Brazil but in Argentina, Chile and Paraguay.

Federal regulars, army and navy airplane and cruisers Bahia and Rio Grande were speeding north to engage the rebels. Gen. Manuel Rabelo was named in supreme command with orders to suppress the revolution. All army, navy and police units in the country were put on emergency duty.

Communist disturbances have been brewing in the north for months. Authorities have been watching developments and believe the rebellion is doomed to failure.

Apparently capturing the wireless station of Natal, the Communist leaders broadcast messages saying "Long live Luis Carlos Prestes" and claiming victories.

BELIEVE KIDNAPER KILLED POLICEMAN TWIN FALLS, Ida., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Fountain Cooper, 32, state traffic officer here, was shot to death near Buhl late today, and Deputy Sheriff Henry C. Givens was wounded critically, when the pair attempted to overtake a fugitive believed to be Douglas Van Vlack, Tacoma kidnap suspect. Cooper was killed instantly by a surprise barrage from the gun of the fugitive. A woman accompanied the killer in a car, officers said. Givens was shot three times, in the neck, left arm and left hand. Physicians said that danger of infection exists.

REPORTED LOST

Lincoln Ellsworth, below, who with his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, has been unheard from since he took off early Saturday for a flight across Antarctica to the Red Sea.

EXPLORER LOST SINCE SUNDAY, RADIO SILENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Lincoln Ellsworth, Arctic explorer, and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, have been missing since 10:48 a. m. yesterday on a flight from Dundee Island and the Antarctic to the Ross Sea, the New York Times said today.

A dispatch from Ellsworth's base ship, the Wyatt Earp, said the strange silence of the plane's radio did not mean serious trouble, but called for immediate establishment of depots if nothing was heard from them.

Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon took off Saturday in their plane, the Polar Star, for the 2140 mile flight over the Antarctic continental mass. Periodic radio messages informed the base ship that all was well until yesterday when Ellsworth said, "still clear no wind." Then the radio went silent.

The New York Times dispatch said the failure of the radio was mysterious, since the plane carried equipment to assure its operation from the ground in case of a forced landing. The equipment, the dispatch said, had been tested carefully.

MAY OBSERVE ECLIPSE PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Lincoln Ellsworth's South Polar explorers, if they are there that long, will be the only persons in the world to see the last 1935 eclipse, occurring Christmas Day.

Mt. Wilson observatory astronomers today revealed that the eclipse, in which all but a thin outer rim of the sun will be covered, will be seen only in South Polar regions.

KING GEORGE RETURNS TO TAKE THRONE

Twelve Years of Exile is Ended Upon Return to Athens Today

ATHENS, Nov. 25.—(UP)—George II, King of the Hellenes, returned to Athens today after 12 years of exile to ascend the throne he fled on December 18, 1923.

The returning head of the House of Glücksburg, the first deposed European monarch to recover a throne since the World War, had taken his first step on Greek soil a few hours earlier at Phaleron, four miles from Athens.

When he left the launch on the cruiser Helle, which brought him from Brindisi, Italy, to Greece, he was greeted by Prince Paul, his uncle, Gen. George Kondylis, who has been acting as regent since the Nov. 3 plebiscite restored the monarchy, and a large group of National officials.

Wildly Cheered The motorcade in which he entered his capital, escorted by 10 mounted generals, was cheered wildly along its route. The crowds began their demonstration the moment the booming of guns in Athens announced that the king had landed and enthusiasm never slackened until a hush fell as George entered the Cathedral of Athens to give thanksgiving for the restoration of the monarchy.

En route to the cathedral the king passed the old palace where his father reigned before him and he himself was the resident until the republic was established on March 25, 1924.

Syngros boulevard, the road along which the royal entourage traveled, was packed densely on both sides by cheering thousands. Nearly every man and woman in the crowd waved the royalist colors.

Triumphal Procession As soon as the deuce had been celebrated, George went to the tomb of the unknown soldier, where he placed a wreath.

Then began the triumphal procession. Escorted by military and naval cadets, companies of infantry and sailors, artillery units, armored cars and battalions of colorful Evzones in kilts, he passed through streets crowded with almost a million and half of his subjects.

Police had taken elaborate precautions. The owners of houses on which the royal procession passed were forbidden to accept visitors without giving notice to the authorities. Even the throwing of flowers was forbidden. In a case of serious and unsmiling he bowed from side to side in acknowledgment of deafening huzzas. He looked tired.

Garden Grove Youth Is Killed In Auto Crash

FRANCIS S. Beamer, 23, orchard laborer, of Garden Grove, was almost instantly killed at 11 o'clock Saturday night, when he was run down by one automobile, and then struck by another, as he and his wife attempted to cross the 101 highway, near the Dixie Castle cafe.

He died at the Orange county hospital at 12:40 a. m. Sunday.

His wife was taken to the hospital where she was treated for minor cuts and bruises.

The Beamers were crossing the highway when both of them were struck by a car driven by Clois Purvis, 21, of 1655 East First street, Santa Ana, who reported that the woman was knocked to the gutter at one side of the car and the man fell in the center of the highway.

Before witnesses could rush to the aid of Beamer, another car rushed along the highway and ran over him. The driver of the machine did not stop and has not been found.

It was the second car which caused the death of Beamer in the opinion of officers. Mrs. Beamer was cut and bruised, but not seriously. Her husband may not have been badly injured had it not been for the second accident. State police today were pushing.

114.927 ACRES SUGAR BEETS, STATE'S QUOTA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(UP)—California producers will cultivate 114,927 acres of production sugar beet lands in 1936 under allotments announced today by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Sugar section officials of the A.A.A. said acreage allotments announced today would, under ordinary circumstances, yield the annual, marketable quota of 1,550,000 short tons of sugar set for the beet sugar industry under the Jones-Costigan act.

Each beet sugar producer who signed a contract was allowed an allotment on the basis of his past production history and these allotments were incorporated as part of his contract with the A.A.A. producers who did not use their entire allotment in 1935 will have the original 1935 quota available next year.

Producers who were allotted acreage in excess of the original 1935 allotments will have only their original quotas available this year and will not be allowed additional acreage unless conditions warrant, officials said.

This situation arises only when some producers who have allotments decided against planting their stipulated acreage.

Officials explained that if the total acreage contracted up to April 10 is below the total allotment, the sign-up period will be extended until sufficient acreage has been signed to meet prescribed quotas. California, unlike other producing states, was considered one area and was not divided into factory districts for the purpose of allotment procedure.

If, on a date to be set later, contracted acreage for the state exceeds the permitted total, the acreage will be reduced until the acreage conforms to requirements.

INJUNCTION GRANTED TO RICE MILLERS

Farm and Fiscal Programs to Face Legal Action Following Decision

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(UP)—The U. S. supreme court dealt a severe blow to the New Deal's farm and fiscal programs today by granting the plea of Louisiana rice millers for an injunction against processing taxes under the AAA amendments.

The court's action applied only to the rice processing taxes but was expected to result in quick legal action by other processors to halt collection of virtually all processing levies.

With processing tax revenues already dwindled to a trickle by hampering legal actions, the court's ruling gave the treasury the serious problem of finding new funds with which to finance the huge AAA benefit payments.

Fears of eventual adverse supreme court action on the final question of the constitutionality of the whole AAA program here intensified.

Restraining Order While the temporary injunction granted by the court applied specifically only to the one-cent-a-pound rice processing tax paid by the eight Louisiana millers who brought the action, it was expected to result in almost universal application of processors to the courts for similar relief.

The injunction given in the rice case today will remain in force until the supreme court acts on a review petition which raises the question of the right of taxpayers to sue to restrain collection of a tax which they contend is unconstitutional. The court announced it would hear argument on this petition Dec. 16.

CONVICT GONE 18 YEARS, ARRESTED

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Herman Harrison, 39, airplane pilot and auto mechanic who escaped from a prison road camp at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, 18 years ago, today awaited return to face possible completion of a five-year term imposed for attempted theft of a sheriff's automobile.

Harrison was arrested here after Oklahoma authorities had traced him through Los Angeles records of a finance company. He said he had worked in large cities throughout the country as a mechanic, and had been employed in Winnipeg, Canada, as a pilot.

The prison warden at McAlester, Okla., wired Chief of Police George Sears that two officers were en route to return Harrison, who still had three years to serve on the theft sentence.

Harrison maintained he was "framed" into taking the Tulsa, Okla., sheriff's car by a person who represented himself as its owner and hired him to drive it.

Calls on Industry to "Gang" New Deal

A PLEA that all industry "gang up" to fight extension of government regulation was sounded by Edward F. Hutton, General Foods Corporation chairman, writing in a utility journal, citing the battle against the holding company bill.

CHINA CLIPPER DELIVERS MAIL IN MID OCEAN

MIDWAY ISLANDS, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Its first consignment of passengers and mail delivered safely after flights across the Pacific, Pan American Airways' China Clipper rode the swells of its midocean base today, ready for the third leg of history's first trans-Pacific airmail crossing.

The ship arrived here from Honolulu at 3:31 p. m. (Midway time) yesterday after a 1580-mile hop from Pearl Harbor, first stop of the transoceanic route. The flight required less than nine hours.

The Clipper left Alameda, Cal., at 3:46 p. m. PST Friday and landed in Honolulu at 12:50 p. m. Saturday after a 2410-mile journey.

Carries Passengers Little ceremony attended the landing here. The Clipper swept out of a hazy sky to a perfect landing. Capt. Edwin C. Musick and his crew of six men were the first ashore. Then followed 14 passengers, the first to make a trans-Pacific flight.

They will relieve the air line's staffs here and at Wake Islands, where workers have been out of actual touch with civilization, aside from radio contacts and a few preliminary lands of the Pan American Clipper, trail blazing flying boat, for nine months. Of this group, W. O. Elkrigger, B. F. O'Brien, J. Brundy, O. Boyd and N. C. Wickland will take up permanent posts here.

Hope Higgins, Dr. Hall Lingenmeyer, W. B. Greenough, A. J. Copeland, H. H. M. Danielson and four Chinese cooks completed the passenger list. They will continue aboard the Clipper to Wake Islands to take up similar air base positions there.

Cargo Unloaded A ton of cargo was unloaded from the craft. Foodstuffs, replacements, machine parts and other equipment needed here was brought ashore. The greatest scramble was for five pounds of mail and late United States and Honolulu papers.

Crated turkeys and a complete variety of accessories were transported here for island dwellers' Thanksgiving dinners. Movie films

ORANGE AND ANAHEIM TO GET GRANTS

City Council Expected to Provide Site for Building Next Meeting

SANTA ANA will have a new $80,000 armory which will serve as headquarters for the National Guard and as a community center, it was learned today from Major Don L. Winans, battalion commander. The matter of providing a site for the Armory is expected to be discussed at the next meeting of the city council.

Armories also are to be built at Anaheim and Orange, these two costing about $65,000 each. The Anaheim and Orange armories will be single unit structures, while the one in this city will be a two-unit building. Total cost of the three projects will be $210,000.

The money with which the armories will be built comes through a direct grant from the Works Progress Administration from funds set aside by President Roosevelt for an armory building program throughout the United States.

Communities are not expected to aid in the financing of the building, but only in furnishing the site. The city of Santa Ana has offered a site on Eighth street between Flower and Olive back of the Municipal Bowl, but it is not yet known whether this site would be large enough. The Anaheim armory will be located at the new city park at the entrance to the city in the old Valencia Fairgrounds. Site for the Orange armory has not been chosen.

Sites must be furnished by the local community and deeded to the state before actual construction can be started, according to a letter received by Mayor Fred C. Rowland from Gen. H. H. Morhead, Sacramento, head of the National Guard who also addressed a letter to the chamber of commerce here asking for support of the project.

A plan recommended by the Orange county planning commission that the funds to be set aside for the armories be used to construct one central armory for the entire county on a 30-acre tract back of the Orange County hospital has been abandoned.

Plans and specifications for the county armories have been prepared by the state architect, forwarded to Major Winans, who in turn has submitted them to mayors of the three cities for the city councils. Each community must submit the approved plans through the local WPA office. Then the plans go to General Morhead and on to Washington, D. C. for final approval. Major Winans feels that these steps are formalities and that there is no doubt that the armories will be built.

Interior details of Santa Ana's Armory will include a drill hall 75 by 100 feet, a stage with two dressing rooms, a storeroom for community equipment, kitchen, indoor rifle range, all of which facilities are available for the public.

There are 212 men in National Guard activities in this county.

NEW CRATER BREAK 'ENTERTAINS' ISLE

HILO, T. H., Nov. 25.—(UP)—New masses of flaming lava crept down the fire-scarred slopes of picturesque Mauna Loa, Hawaii's huge volcano, today as activity continued to rumble in the firepit of the Mokuaweewe crater.

Observers reported the new lava flow began from a new break in the crater wall last night.

Tourists and island sightseers rushed to the scene as activity in Mokuaweewe's north firepit continued unabated.

Extent of the latest eruption was veiled by a curtain of smoke and rain clouds clinging to the slopes and summit of the 14,000 foot volcano. A few hours after it had started, however, the new lava flow, following the course of the eruption of last Thursday and Friday, had advanced two miles down the mountainside.

U. S. OIL EMBARGO 'HOSTILE' MOVE, ITALIAN DECLARES

ROME, Nov. 25.—(UP)—An Italian government spokesman told the United Press today that if the United States should declare an oil embargo against Italy it would be considered not only an unfriendly but a "hostile" act and would necessitate the adoption of Italian counter measures.

The attitude of the United States has become a vital matter to Italy. If the United States should refuse to supply the raw materials Italy must have for her war, difficulties would be increased.

Since the outbreak of war Italy has depended on goods from the United States to defeat league of nations penalty. A departure by President Roosevelt from what is called here American neutrality would be a hard blow. Statements by officials at Washington have caused apprehension.

League penalties have been in force for one week. So far they seem to have made little direct im-

SANTA ANA H. S. NEWSPAPER WINS THREE FIRST PLACES

IN A FIELD of 40 entrants The Generator, Santa Ana High school weekly paper, won three first places in student publication competition Saturday at the fall convention of the Southern California High School Press association held at the Woodrow Wilson Junior high school, Glendale.

Winning for the best front page, Editor LaVonne Franson, Audrey make-up, best editorial and best feature story, the high school paper received the highest honors. Honorable mention was given for the extra edition that was printed during the evacuation of the high school buildings, and the paper also took second place for sport page make-up.

The editorial, "Our Task and Duty," was written by LaVonne Franson, editor, urging students to cooperate with the school administration during the half-hour schedule of classes following the evacuation of buildings. The issue of Oct. 16 was the winning front page make-up, while the feature story written by Audrey Granas, feature editor, received the prize for the best feature story.

Approximately 450 delegates attended the convention. Eight students from the Santa Ana High school attended. These included:

New officers for next semester as elected by the convention are as follows: Pomona high school, president; Excelsior high, vice-president; San Bernardino high, secretary, and Hollywood high, treasurer. Officers are elected by schools rather than individuals.

Donald Rhoades, president of the association for last year, presided.

HIGH TRIBUNAL HITS NEW DEAL WITH DECISION

The government has contended that taxpayers must pay first and then sue in the courts for a refund. Such a procedure was specifically provided in the AAA amendments, but taxpayers contended that a provision against refund unless the tax has not been passed on made the guarantee without value.

Meanwhile, the state of Arizona resumed its battle against the Souldier dam project and the apportionment of waters in the Colorado basin.

The supreme court also ruled in favor of action taken by the state of Virginia to force removal of mountaineers from the homes where they have lived for many years to make room for a "summer playground." The Blue Ridge families had refused to budge from the mountains.

The supreme court then recessed for two weeks in which to write opinions on cases already argued. When it returns, the heaviest legal firing of the New Deal regime will open. Legality of the original AAA act will be argued and the court will hear a demand that it outlaw the Tennessee Valley authority.

Decision of the court on the rice tax injunction was not unanimous. Justices Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan P. Stone and Benjamin N. Cardozo dissented.

With more than 1000 suits challenging the processing taxes already filed and collection of some $150,000,000 in taxes held up, the tax blockade was expected to furnish treasury officials a serious problem.

Despite increase of virtually all other sources of revenue, the treasury balance sheet now shows income far below expectations due to the processing tax famine.

ANAHEIM BOY IS INJURED IN UNUSUAL CRASH

Howard Sherman, 15-year-old son of Police Officer and Mrs. Roger Sherman, of Anaheim, was badly injured at 7:50 a. m. today when he was knocked from the bicycle he was riding, through the windshield of the car which struck him.

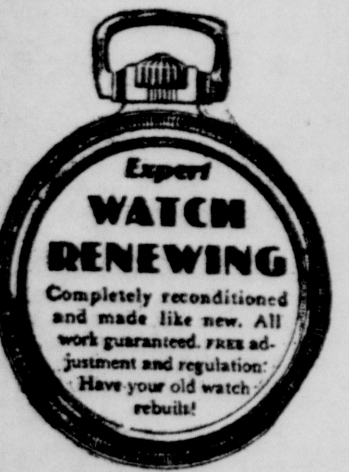

The lad suffered a broken foot, and bad cuts about the head and body. After being given medical aid, he was removed to the home of his parents, at 209 East Elsworth avenue, Anaheim.

Police reported the youth was riding a bicycle on North Los Angeles street at the time. The accident occurred at the intersection of Los Angeles street and Broadway. The driver of the car was T. L. Williamson, of 737 South Sabina street.

The impact of the machine and the bicycle caused the boy to fly up into the air, coming down through the windshield of the automobile.

It's 'Sweet Job' To Drizzle Honey Properly

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 25.—(UP)—If you can't drizzle honey properly, you'll never be a success in the kitchen. Mrs. M. F. Jensen of the American Honey Institute said today.

Mrs. Jensen is to lecture Wednesday on the fine points of honey use, and it seems that drizzling is right up at the top of the list.

"There are the hot and cold schools of honey pouring," Mrs. Jensen says. "But the only right way is to have it heated. Warm honey dribbles from a sharp pointed pitcher, whereas cold honey pours in a heavy stream and makes things too sweet."

NO WITNESSES CALLED TODAY BY GRAND JURY

The county grand jury resumed session today, but whether its deliberations concerned the investigation of County Recorder Whitney's accounts was not ascertained, as no witnesses were summoned to day.

That fact gave rise to the assumption that the investigation now rests with the findings of the grand jury auditors, who are inspecting all county books and accounts. Whether final report of the grand jury upon the investigation will be made immediately upon completion of the examination, or will be deferred until the regular grand jury report is filed, was not indicated.

The investigation dealt with charges by County Supervisor N. E. West that Recorder Whitney was reported to have been short in her accounting of receipts with the treasury, and to have made false affidavit in making her settlement.

This report, it was learned today, from authoritative sources, concerned the September settlement, which was itself said to have been delayed beyond the legal time limit of November 5.

15-Year-Old Girl Who Eloped Sent Back to Parents

Catherine Cox, 15-year-old Irvine girl, who eloped with her sweetheart away from the Tustin high school last week, was found by the Los Angeles police Saturday night and returned to Santa Ana by deputy sheriffs.

The girl was turned over to juvenile officers who in turn, turned her back to her parents. Robert Cozzens, 21, of Los Angeles, asserted to have been the man who took the child from the school. He is still the object of a search by local officers who hold a warrant for his arrest on a charge of child-stealing.

Efforts of the couple to get married here were frustrated and they eloped last Friday.

ARRESTED FOR FIGHTING
Walter Murphy, 25, Fullerton man, was arrested by deputy sheriff Saturday night at a dance at Buena Park. He was booked at the jail on a charge of fighting. According to a report made by officers, Murphy was fighting with Bob Moll, at the dance hall.

The body of Beamer was removed to the Winbigger Mortuary here, where an inquest will be held within the next few hours, according to Earl Abbey, coroner. Beamer had been a resident of the county for the past five months. He was born in Grove, Okla., and had been a resident of California for the past 14 years. Besides his wife he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Calvin N. Stewart, 1924 Oak street, Santa Ana, his father, Oliver C. Beamer, of Grove, Okla., and a stepfather, Calvin N. Stewart.

His death is the 57th caused by automobile crashes on Orange county highways this year, four more than the total for the year 1934 and five more than at this time last year.

brought here by the Clipper provided informal entertainment for the residents and visitors last night.

The Clipper was to take off early today for Wake, 1252 miles westward. The craft then will continue to Guam and then to the Philippines, journey's end for the present flight.

Special guards for the huge consignment of mail were placed aboard the airplane last night. Mechanics checked every part of the big Martin flying boat, powered by 800 horsepower Wasp motors.

After one or two more flights to Manila the Clipper will continue to China and operate on through schedules thereafter.

HARRIS ESTATE MATTER AGAIN BEFORE COURT

The legal heirs of the late Mrs. Maria L. Harris, Santa Ana philanthropist, having succeeded in breaking her will which left the bulk of her $45,000 estate to religious institutions, today found themselves in turn opposed by her husband's heirs.

The petition by R. E. Larter, of Westminster; Hansler Larter, of Huntington Beach, and Mrs. Mary Griffith, of Los Angeles, brothers and sister of the late Mrs. Harris, to distribute the estate to them, was being contested today before Superior Judge James L. Allen by Albert E. Harris, of Long Beach, and more than a dozen other heirs of the late R. T. Harris, early-day sheriff and county treasurer of Orange county, who died 23 years ago.

Heirs of the latter, none of whom reside in Orange county, contend that R. T. Harris, husband of Mrs. Maria Harris, owned as his separate property a considerable portion of the property now forming the wife's estate. When her will was set aside recently, at the demand of her heirs, the Larter brothers and Mrs. Griffith, and she was held to have died intestate, that portion of the estate which had been the separate property of her husband, automatically reverted back to his heirs, they contend.

Questions of law and fact in the case were being argued today before Judge Allen by Judge R. Y. Williams and Charles D. Swanner, counsel for the Larters and Mrs. Griffith, and by O. A. Jacobs, counsel for the R. T. Harris heirs.

In her will, Mrs. Harris had left large legacies to the First Christian church of Santa Ana, Chapman college, Los Angeles, and various missionary and other church organizations. Her heirs broke the will on the ground that she had carried out the provisions for these legacies by gifts before her death to the various religious beneficiaries.

CERTIFICATE PRESENTED TO DR. E. ROWLAND

One of the few men on the Pacific coast who was a delegate to the 1919 caucus in Paris, France, where plans were formulated for the organization of the American Legion, Dr. Elliott H. Rowland, of Santa Ana, today received national recognition when he received a certificate from national Legion officers expressing appreciation for his services in helping organize the Legion.
A certificate attesting that a resolution commending Dr. Rowland for his work was adopted at the September national Legion convention in St. Louis, was received by Dr. Rowland today, signed by Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., former national Legion commander, and Frank E. Samuel, national adjutant. The National Legion seal was placed on the certificate.
Dr. Rowland was a captain in the dental corps of the 129th Machine Gun Battalion, 35th Division, and served 18 months in active service in the World War. He recalled today that but between 200 and 300 American soldiers attended the Paris caucus. The home of contention at the caucus, he said, was whether or not service men who did not serve overseas should be allowed to be members of the organization. It was finally concluded, he said, that in order to form a strong organization, they should be taken into the organization. The name, "American Legion" was proposed at the Paris meeting.
Resolution Text
"Whereas a caucus was held on March 15, 16 and 17 of 1919, in Paris, France, at which time there were present representatives of the various branches of the armed forces of the United States of America to formulate plans for a patriotic organization of veterans of the World War which would continue to carry on service to community, state and nation in peace time; and
"Whereas, a second caucus was held in St. Louis, Mo., May 8, 9 and 10, 1919, for the purpose of furthering the aims and purposes laid down in the original Paris caucus; and
"Whereas these two gatherings laid the foundation for our great organization known as the American Legion; now therefore be it
"Resolved, by the American Legion in national convention assembled in St. Louis on this 26th day of September, 1935, that the sincere thanks and deep appreciation of all members of the American Legion be extended to those persons who attended the Paris and St. Louis caucuses and took part in those deliberations."

CARNegie BIRTH OBSERVED BY S. A. LIBRARY

The Santa Ana public library and similar institutions throughout the country today are celebrating the centennial anniversary of the birth of Andrew Carnegie, whose gifts made possible 2811 libraries throughout the world.

The hundredth anniversary of the philanthropist is being observed with celebrations in many cities of the United States. The Santa Ana library, endowed with a part of the $350,000,000 given away by Carnegie, was built in 1903.

Carnegie's first gift was made to the public library in his little home town of Dunfermline, Scotland. His fondness and passion for books was nurtured in the library of Col. James Anderson, of Allegheny, Pa., who opened his private library to boys of the town who were interested.

Gifts made by Carnegie range from $5,000,000 for 66 branches of the New York public library, to $1000 for a tiny Scotland village. At the time of his death he had spent more than $45,000,000 on libraries in America. There are 2811 Carnegie libraries, of which 1946 are in the United States.

As a cultural contribution to American life, Mrs. Ethel Walker, Santa Ana librarian, said today, the value of such a gift is unestimable. "The public library," Mrs. Walker said, "is today as much a part of American life as the public school and the church. That the library has reached this important place in American life in such a few years is largely due to the interest and generosity of Andrew Carnegie."

A very beautiful copy, attractively framed, of the F. Louis Mora portrait of Mr. Carnegie, has been sent to the Santa Ana library as an anniversary gift, by the Carnegie corporation.

The Santa Ana library has hung the portrait in the main reading room, where it will be on display for some time.

COMMERCIAL STUDENTS 2ND AT S. A. JAYCEE

With a total of 197 students registered for majors in the commerce department at Santa Ana Junior college, the department is showing a large increase over last year, George B. Holmes, head of the department, announced today.

Figures show that the commerce department is second in the list of majors, following the letters and science division which has 333. Out of the total of 709 students registered at junior college, the engineering major has 90 students, education has 43, and special students 45.

Two courses are offered in the commerce major, a regular two-year course, or intensive secretarial training in preparation for holding an immediate position. Both courses require the students to pass the Subject A examination or take English X. The two-year course includes general business subjects, physical education, and background work.

Santa Ana was among the first junior colleges to emphasize the short, practical secretarial course, and is still among the leading schools, according to Holmes. New equipment was installed last year, following the move to the present location.

More than 80 machines are available for the use of the commerce students. These include about 34 typewriters; Monro, Marchant, Burroughs and comptometer calculating machines; bank-posting machines; bookkeeping machines, adding machines; duplicators, and dictaphones.

Instructors in the commerce department include Holmes, who specializes in business law, accounting and other business subjects; Harry F. Jackson, in charge of typing classes and accounting; Miss Genevieve Humiston, instructor or shorthand and machine work; and Miss Dorothy Decker, merchandising instructor, who will return to jaycee next semester after taking advanced work at the University of California. All instructors hold A. M. degrees, according to Holmes.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

—News Behind The News—

WASHINGTON
By PAUL MALLON
(Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon)
JOURNAL

Senator Borah is unquestionably now planning to announce his presidential candidacy well in advance of the first spring primary. His name will probably be entered, not only throughout the west but in many eastern and central states.

This statement of his intentions is not official, of course, but it is as clear to every adequately informed Republican authority here as if the official announcement had already been made.

To them, there is nothing coy or obscure about Mr. Borah and his purpose. They suffer not a whit of the confusion which appears to exist in the public mind as a result of his shrewd refusal to be drawn out permanently.

CHALLENGE—
The Idahoan is out to whip the nominal party leaders and leadership. The only way he can do it is to round up as many convention delegates as he can lay his hands on.

It is not exactly a secret prospect that this adversarial can and will prevent him from getting the nomination. Borah knows that. He must know it. Every political amateur knows it, and Borah is a long way from being an amateur.

But he can make his adversarial do business with him, both as to the candidate and the platform. He is the only big-name drawing card, the only box office star, and they may have to go more than a little out of their way to meet his terms.

CHANCES—
Most authorities see only two possibilities of keeping Borah out of the fight. One is that he may tire of the chase, before spring. His friends consider this hardly likely, this time. The situation is too inviting for him.

The other possibility is that his terms may be met beforehand. This seems to be hardly possible.

SIREN SONG—
NRA enthusiasts here are playing some bezzing cue music for the coming December 9 conference. They are tuning up the public ear on the theme that employment and payrolls still are away out of line with production. The idea is that the growth of technological unemployment and the increasing number of employables (boys out of school, etc.) make a new NRA absolutely necessary in one form or another. It is a good tune for their purposes, but thinner than it sounds.

FACTS—
The public generally seems to have jumped toward this conclusion because the latest index of industrial production was around 90 per cent of normal, while employment was 82 and factory payrolls were only 74, just if you will look into the disparity with a eyeglass, you will find that the key to the situation lies in the closest fact that the production figures are based on a different set of industries than the employment and payroll figures. For instance, the production figure is heavily influenced by manufacturers of electricals. This industry has been virtually booming since the depression, but it employs very little labor.

For another instance, the building construction industry undoubtedly furnishes more labor per dollar of expenditure than nearly any other large industry. It employs in normal times a very substantial proportion of the total number of American workers. But it is the industry which has recovered least, thus far.

PROOF—
The fact is the heavy goods industries (steel, building, mining, etc.) are now operating at only 52 per cent normal. Their output is only 36 per cent of the total national production, whereas in 1929-30 they produced about 50 per cent of national production. And it is in these industries that the great bulk of unemployment lies today.

Also if you base your production, employment and payroll figures on 1929-30 as 100 (instead of 1923-25 averages, on which the official figures are based), you will get an entirely different answer. Figuring 1929 as 100 for all three, you will find that production during this year has averaged around 73 per cent normal, employment 78 per cent and payrolls 63 per cent.

Thus, on a 1929 base, you find that existing employment is even nearer normal than production and the disparity of both with payrolls is lessened.

CONCLUSIONS—
These figures do not mean that there has been no replacement of workers by machines. Nor do they indicate that the recent increase in number of employables has been over-estimated.

What they seem to say clearly is that an improvement in durable goods industries is needed as much as an NRA to correct the existing disparity in employment and payrolls. Also they scream the fact that the status of technical unemployment and of increasing employables has been stressed too much.

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker
BRAKES
Federal Reserve Boarders have wrestled with the problem of checking credit inflation for the last three days without reaching any decision. They have adopted a policy of "watchful waiting."

Outside advisers begged Reserve

Chairman Eccles to use his power to cut down bank reserves which now total $3,000,000,000 and therefore furnish a borrowing reservoir of $20,000,000,000 for speculative interests. He has the authority to increase the amounts which banks must carry against deposits, and he could easily curtail the funds they can lend to stock gamblers. Outside bankers wanted him to exercise his power by degrees and see what the result would be.

But Governor Eccles backed off. The administration dreads an artificial boom that would react adversely later but it welcomes rising prices. Mr. Eccles also points out that a mild exercise of his power now might not stop a runaway market. He favors an attitude of waiting until the boom constitutes a serious threat and then stepping in with all the traffic signals he has under the law. He figures it would deter stock speculators more effectively than handing out a few night-court tickets now.

MENARY
The Canadian tariff treaty is not proving such a vulnerable target as the GOP hoped it would be. Their antics have been rather amusing since they sat down to study the details.

National Chairman Fletcher, a former Tariff Commissioner head, has uttered no word of criticism. Many reductions on steel and machinery benefit such GOP states as Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio.

The Republican Congressional Committee keeps silent because many schedules satisfy members they seek to re-elect next year. But Harrison Spangler, who has charge of Chicago headquarters, bewails the lowering of the gates on goods which compete with farm products.

Nevertheless, the GOP figures that Mr. Roosevelt may have tossed two states into its lap—Washington and Oregon. Though normally regarded as New Dealish, the entry of Canadian lumber and fish at reduced rates may tip the balance. So says Charles McNary, assistant GOP Senate leader out hitherto sympathetic to Mr. Roosevelt's broad program.

RELIEF
Although the Mayors' Conference is a non-partisan body President Roosevelt privately expressed his gratitude for the way they handled several problems which have been bothering him. Insiders suspect collusion.

The Mayors, who ought to know popular sentiment, bombarded Washington with a demand for continuance of relief after current funds run out. It is expected that Congressmen preaching economy will take their cue from what the Mayors said and vote for additional work-relief appropriations. President Roosevelt seized the chance to proclaim that with or without budget-balancing he would not let anybody starve. In short the cities again dumped the relief job on the federal administration.

Mayor LaGuardia's attack on the "semi-colon boys" did not displease the man in the White House, though it upset Messrs. Hopkins and Ickes. Mr. Roosevelt endorsed the LaGuardia criticism and thereby informed his subordinates indirectly to dispense with "red tape."

PROFITS
"What is whiskey?"
Though it seems to be a simple question, finding the answer is giving a headache to Secretary Morgenthau, who must soon arbitrate the 60-year-old problem. President Taft thought he had settled it with his famous "What is whiskey?" decision, but new processes of making liquor have upset all the old standards. Mr. Morgenthau must now decide whether labels on the bottle should warn that the contents contain "straight" or "blended" goods. It means millions of dollars to the distillers interests.

Distillers maintain that whiskey gets its peculiar flavor—and kick—from its age. They own most of the liquor which meets that definition. But the rectifiers insist that they can make whiskey by certain overnight, blending processes. The latter contend that whiskey is whiskey, no matter the age. So Mr. Morgenthau, who doesn't like whiskey in any form, must say whether the labels shall proclaim the details of ingredients and manufacture. It's a tough assignment for a man who doesn't know rye from scotch. But he has many experts who do—and Harry Wiley laid down rules twenty years ago which might help today.

ERROR
Gifford Pinchot, William Green, Senator Fletcher of Florida, and Mayor Dave Sholtz of Miami were forced to cool their heels in Secretary Ickes' outer office this week while they heard a spiny lecture issued from the sanctum.

"Don't call me Mr. Ickes! I'm sick and tired of being called Ickes. My name is Ickus—Ickus—Ickus—that's the way to pronounce my name!"

The listeners heard a muffled apology and another outburst: "So many people call me Ickes! It isn't the way you pronounce my name. It's Ickus—Ickus—Ickus!"

Six times did the Secretary of the Interior-Petroleum Administrator-Public Works Administrator-Governor of St. Elizabeth's Hospital insist that his name wasn't Ickes.

Then a newcomer appeared, and inquired: "Is Mr. Ickes in?"

INFORMED
Only a few years ago American naval vessels sailing up the Yangtze River were under official orders that they must not retaliate against any kind of fire. If roving Chinese bandits took it into their heads to bombard a ship with frozen mud bullets, our sailors had to grin and bear it.

Recently an American cruiser went up the river and was subjected to a pestiferous though not serious fire from river forts. The Chinese marauders, it seems, did not know that the order to submit peaceably had been changed.

CHURCH GROUP ARRANGES FOR PLAY NOV. 27

FULLERTON, Nov. 25.—A play, "Fine Gold," directed by Miss Marjorie Allen, will be presented in connection with program scheduled for the high school auditorium Wednesday evening, when the 40th anniversary of the printing of the Bible in English will be observed by Northern Orange county churches.

The cast is as follows: Albert Stevens, who has had a business promotion, Edward Watkins; Mary Stevens, his wife, Mrs. L. I. Chalmers; Dick, the son who wants to be set up in business, Roy Clark; Blanche, the daughter whose heart is set on a trip to Europe, Miss Katherine Mitchell; Jacob Goldberg, an old friend of the family, the Rev. T. A. Flynn; Marjorie Goldberg, his wife, Mrs. T. A. Flynn; Esther and Becky, their daughters, Mildred Gage and Lois Hollingsworth.

A unique feature of the play is its double ending, showing first the results of one decision, then the other.

A silver offering will be taken at this Thanksgiving service, half of which will be devoted to the purchase of the Bible in Braille to be given to a blind person.

A British gunboat steaming up behind the American cruiser wagged the following radio message to Hongkong: "American Cruiser—has just steamed by the forts. The forts are now ready for AAA benefit payments."

MEXICO CITY GOES FOR BASEBALL IN LARGE WAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Japan is the only foreign nation more interested in baseball than Mexico. "They want a dozen American managers and coaches to come down there and develop them," says Al Schacht, the comedian who accompanied the All-American league team on a tour of the republic below the Rio Grande at the conclusion of the campaign.

"They really go for the game. Why, we had hundreds of women of 65 and more at our games every day. They've always got a band out there and they give the visitor a lot of applause when he makes a good fielding play or drives in a couple of runs. When he does that the band plays the hero number when he comes back to the bench and people stand up and applaud."

"When it was all over they paid us off in pesos. They had coins stacked up by the bushel. I never saw so many coins even in big collections. I sent five pesos out for a barrel and dropped all mine into the barrel, counting all the while. "That was silly because I lost track. Anyway, after the barrel was filled I walked along with the pesos to the nearest bank and when I left I could put all I got in exchange for my pesos in my vest pocket. What I got was seven $100 bills. Not so good and not so bad!"

MUCH TOO GOOD
American league players who made the trip were Vernon Kennedy, Ted Lyons, Earl Whitehill, and Jack Knott, pitchers; Luke Sewell and Charley Berry, catchers; Jimmy Fox, first base; Rogers Hornsby, second base; Frank Higgins, third base; Eric McNair, shortstop; and Heinie Manush, Roger Cramer, and Ralph Kress, outfielders.

"That team would be good enough for any league, and was much too good for Mexico," asserts Schacht.

The club appeared in Mexico City on Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays. On other days it performed in nearby towns.

DARTMOUTH NEEDED '12TH MAN'

Inebriated Interloper Breathes Defiance At Tigers

HE WAS GREEN'S ACE IN LINE

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25.—But not through our friend's side of the line. With the snap of the ball the twelfth man made a charge which carried him through the oncoming Princeton line and spinning on out into the open snow. As he landed his derby flew off his head and his head rammed into a drift. The officers of the law, on hand now, gathered him up rudely and rushed him off the field and through an exit.

His removal was an error. Dartmouth needed him; needed his enthusiasm and his tremendous drive. In that one play he demonstrated he was the best Dartmouth lineman on the field. For he was the only big green player to burst straight through the great Princeton line all afternoon. Had he been in there earlier he might have held the Princeton score to two touchdowns.

Even handicapped as he was, with a flowing fleece overcoat, gloves and a derby which wouldn't stay on, he was the standout of the Dartmouth forward wall. Dartmouth, too, probably wants to know his name. For when the varsity letters are awarded next spring, he should get out. A big Block D. Not since the time of Dartmouth's founder, Eleazar Wheelock, has any Dartmouth man done so much on one bottle of rum.

He beat his gloved hands above his head, yanked his derby down over his ear like a headguard, and told the Princeton to come on flying in his side of the line. Even as granddames rushed from the stands to lay violent hands on the newcomer to the battle, the ball was snapped and Jack White, Princeton halfback, tore into the line for a touchdown.

MICHECK, OREGON'S FULLBACK, INJURED

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 24.—(UP)—University of Oregon probably will enter its final game of the 1935 season minus the services of Frank Michick, senior fullback and pivot man of the Websters' famed "cruncher" offense, physicians said today.

They said ligaments of Michick's knee were torn badly in the first period of the Oregon-Washington game Saturday. Jerry Donnell, sophomore who replaced Michick, was indicated as a likely starter at the position. He scored the winning touchdown and played a strong offensive and defensive game in Saturday's contest. Oregon plays St. Mary's Dec. 7.

Favor Szabo Over Davis

MAT AGE MAY END WILLIE'S 'TERROR REIGN'

TONIGHT'S CARD
Sandor Szabo, vs. "Wee Willie" Davis, best two out of three falls, one hour time limit.

Casey Columbo vs. Mehemet Youssef, one fall, 30 minute time limit.

Preacher Hogue vs. Nelson Davis, one fall, 30 minute time limit.

Milo Steinborn vs. Jack Smith, one fall, 30 minute time limit.

"Wee Willie" Davis, the six-foot-four, 247-pound West Virginia rough and tumble wrestler, comes face to face with one of the leading scientific matmen tonight at the Orange County Athletic club in the person of the Handsome Hungarian champion, Sandor Szabo. According to smart observers, "Wee Willie" is slated to get paid in full for his unruly tactics here in the past.

For the past six or seven weeks mat followers of this section have been looking forward to the time when Davis would be paired with just such a man as Szabo—a clean, popular scientific fellow who depends upon his wrestling ability to win.

The Hungarian has mastered the "H-lock" and has used it with an abundance of success. It is this hold that Szabo is putting no little dependence in tonight.

Sandor has never suffered defeat here, although he has met such men as "Man Mountain" Dean, Jim Browning and a half dozen others.

The arrogant Davis has been using all the tricks of the trade. Last week Wee Willie scored at the expense of Casey Kazanjian, after it appeared as though the former Stanford football player was on his way to a draw.

Casey Columbo, who looms as one of the coming greatest of the heavyweight division on the Pacific coast, and like Szabo is a fast, clean popular performer, opposes the Terrible Turk Youssef in the one-fall, 30-minute semifinal. They went to a fast draw last week and Promoter Sam Sampson immediately rematched them for this week's card.

The former circus strongman, Milo Steinborn, comes back into action in one of the supporting bouts, meeting Jack Smith of Chicago while Nelson Davis, as popular as "Wee Willie" is disliked, tangles with Preacher Hogue.

S. A. Golfers Move Into 2nd Round

Their first round finally completed, Santa Ana Country club's crack golfers moved today into the second week of the annual championship tournament.

Ed Holmes, Jr., W. W. Watson, and J. K. McDonald won the five matches which were delayed because of rain a week ago.

McDonald eliminated L. H. Robinson, three times a semi-finalist, by a 3 and 2 margin. McDonald shot a 38-39-77 to Robinson's 41-42-83. Shooting a par 72, Holmes ousted Don Andrew. Footie's 80 took care of Benny Osterman. Manker won from Warren Fletcher on the 19th hole, and Watson put out L. L. Carden, one up.

Those still left in the championship flight are Dick Ewert, the defending titlist; A. W. Robinson, C. R. Furr, B. V. Curry, L. W. Bemis, W. W. Footie, Ed Holmes, Han Manker, F. E. Farnsworth, Ross Hostetter, A. B. Watson, Ray Chapman, Ward Akley, Milt Johnson, H. S. Wright and J. K. McDonald.

Jim Moscrip Out Of Pasadena Game, Fear

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Bearing a broken jaw, a dislocated knee and a possibly fractured hand as marks of his outstanding play in Saturday's California-Stanford football game, James ("Monk") Moscrip, Cardinal end, was in Palo Alto hospital today.

While Moscrip said all the injuries were incurred in Saturday's game, there were reports in some quarters that he had suffered the jaw injury in the U. S. C. game at Los Angeles and had said nothing about it, other than it was injured severely.

Dr. Fritz Roth, team physician, said he doubted whether Moscrip would be able to play if the Cardinals are chosen as the West's Rose Bowl representatives.

The physician was to place the football player under an anesthetic today and attempt to remedy the dislocation. He tapped the knee yesterday and removed a quantity of fluid which was causing Moscrip considerable pain.

Carl Schott, who replaced Moscrip when he was injured, also suffered a jaw injury and Bob Black, Stanford guard, suffered two broken ribs.

Officials of the two universities, declaring the game was one of the cleanest of the year, emphasized that the injuries were not the result of unduly rough or unfair tactics.

There are two new developments today in the Anaheim-Brea football tangle which is to be unraveled tomorrow: (1) The Orange County league championship game will be played at Anaheim instead of at Fullerton, beginning at 2:15, and (2) the winner will meet Santa Barbara Saturday in a Southern C. I. F. playoff contest.

Tied for the conference title with five victories and no defeats (both were tied once in non-league competition), Anaheim and Brea-Olinda were rained out last Friday. They were to have met in the Fullerton stadium, a neutral field, but when they couldn't get the Fullerton plant for tomorrow's affair Coaches Dick Glover and "Shorty" Smith flipped a coin and Anaheim won the toss.

Unofficially, it was stated that if Anaheim wins from Brea the Anaheim-Santa Barbara tussle would be held at Anaheim. Brea, however, probably would elect to travel to the land of the Dons, it was understood.

Other C. I. F. pairings were announced as follows: Hoover (San Diego) vs. Muir Tech (San Diego); Riverside vs. Monrovia at Riverside Wednesday; Fillmore vs. San Luis Obispo at San Luis Obispo.

The winner of the Orange league vs. Santa Barbara contest will face the winner of the Fillmore-San Luis Obispo game.

Anaheim is expected to prove too big and powerful for Brea-Olinda although the underdog spot is right down Coach Smith's alley. The Wildcats are usually most dangerous under such circumstances, and are sure to come out fighting. Both clubs are at full strength. Coach Glover announcing definitely that his 190-pound all-league tackle, "Rusty" Roquet, will start. Roquet has been ailing for several weeks with a rib injury. The lineup:

OFFICIALS—Howard Lutz, referee; George Baker, umpire; Bill Cole, head lineman.

Bob Reid, rangy tackle, and Lester Bock, blond right halfback, were under medical care today for injuries suffered on successive plays in the Santa Ana-Pomona high school football game last Friday.

There is a possibility both may be lost to the Saints for the Coast league tournament at Long Beach December 7.

The team's physical described Reid's trouble as a moderate concussion," sustained when he was kicked in the head. Read also has chest injuries of undetermined severity. The tall tackle was confined today but probably will be able to return to school Tuesday.

Bock's right knee was severely wrenched and he is probably through with football for the season.

Santa Ana's squad resumed light training today for the Long Beach tourney in which the Saints open against Long Beach and later take on Alhambra, both in 16-minute "quarters." Coach Bill Foote will have his squad out Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and then knock off work through the Thanksgiving holidays until next Monday.

GOOD HEALTH SUBJECT FOR LATHROP P.T.A.

A panel discussion on good health, including the physical, mental, moral and emotional phases, will be led by Mrs. Neal Belsol, seventh vice-president of the California P.T.A. at the meeting of Lathrop P.T.A. tomorrow at 8 p. m. in Room 33 of Julia Lathrop High School.

There will be a special hour following under leadership of Mrs. Ernest Ashland and her committee, Mrs. O. V. Barton, Mrs. Jack Titchenal and Mrs. A. C. Spurrier.

Lathrop's need for an assembly hall was brought more than ever to mind, according to P.T.A. officials, at the P.T.A. carnival Friday, when rain forced the event indoors and a small room in the main building had to be used.

Mrs. Lorena Croddy Graves was chairman of the program committee, which included Mrs. Thomas Short and Mrs. Barney Koster. Lathrop students presented the program, the girls glee club, directed by Miss Edith Cornell, and the boys glee club, directed by D. W. Stover, contributing several numbers.

Numbers were given by individuals, including Caroline Wells, Nye Martin, David Craighead, James Thwaite, Eugene Friday, Jack Faust, Margie Wulenweider and Betty Jean Koster.

Following were the various committees: ice cream and candy; Mrs. Forrest Menzie, Mrs. Harold Wahlberg, Mrs. Frank Corey and Mrs. Roland Flaherty; hot dog stand; Mrs. Ernest Ashland, Mrs. Jack Titchenal, Mrs. E. E. Frisby, Mrs. Albert Foster, Mrs. O. V. Barton, Mrs. C. A. Spurrier and Mrs. Paul Anderson; fish pond; Mrs. William Penkopp, Mrs. Richard Metz, Mrs. James F. Lining Up No. 5

Don't be surprised to hear almost any time now that Kay Francis has signed away her freedom to Delmar Daves. He's a screen writer and will be her fifth husband. While there was much talk about Kay's supposed romance with Maurice Chevalier during her recent European jaunt, whispered reports are that the real reason for the voyage was to break off a secret romance with a wealthy Italian, so she would be free to wed Daves.

Serious Occupation

A studio official on his way to a projection room to look at a special new reel stopped at Eddie Cantor's dressing room and asked him to go along.

"I can't possibly do it," said Eddie, who was working on the story of his next picture. "We're right in the middle of approaching a joke."

200 Attend Bachelors' Club Dance

The annual Bachelors' ball held Saturday night for the students of Santa Ana Junior college was attended by approximately 200 persons. The dance was staged in the ballroom of the Lake Norconian club near Corona.

The dinner preceding the dance was participated in by about 50 persons, including the Bachelor members, the alumni, and their guests. The guests of the members were presented with engraved bracelets as favors at the dinner.

Following the banquet, dancing began promptly at 9 p. m., continuing until midnight. Music was furnished by Shirley's orchestra from Long Beach. Honored guests during the evening were Director and Mrs. D. K. Hammond, and Dean and Mrs. Calvin C. Flint.

The bill is given annually by the members of the Bachelors, men's service club at the college, for the students. All plans for the dance were under the direction of Al Markel, president of the organization.

Christian Science

"The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him." This verse from Lamentations constituted the Golden Text in the lesson-sermon on "Soul and Body" yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Among the Scriptural selections in the lesson-sermon were these words of Jesus, from Matthew: "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: . . . Wherefore, of God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?"

A correlative passage from "Science and Health the Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the statement, "The recipe for beauty is to have less illusion and more soul, to retreat from the belief of pain or pleasure in the body into the unchanging calm and glorious freedom of spiritual harmony."

LIKES SPIRAL SPAGHETTI
ROME — (UP) — Macaroni and spaghetti in Italy have almost as many shapes as there are cities in the country. At Bologna it is ribbon shaped; in Rome it comes in strips, but in Sicily it is skillfully rolled around knitting needles to make it a tiny spiral.

4 BURGLARIES ARE REPORTED OVER WEEKEND

A burglar who broke into the garage of Lloyd DeFries, at 925 East Third street, stole a number of articles, worth $56 and then dropped them and ran when he was surprised coming out of the place.

A good description of the man was given police but he has not been found.

Fishing tackle, a number of child's trinkets, a pair of hiking boots and four 50-cent gold pieces were among the articles taken. The garage had been ransacked.

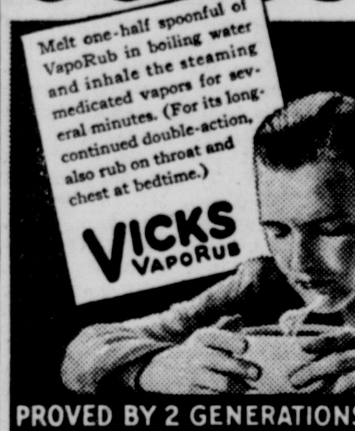

The burglar was walking away from the garage when Mrs. DeFries drove her car into the driveway. He saw her, dropped the bundle he was carrying containing the loot and escaped.

A burglar who used a pass key to the apartment of C. W. Ott at 402 1-2 North Broadway yesterday, stole three suits of clothes and other clothing, according to a report made to the city police. The clothes were valued at $105.

N. H. Pierpont, of 4131-2 West Fourth street, reported yesterday to the police that his room was entered and an overcoat valued at $25 was stolen. He said he left the room for 15 minutes to get his shoes shined and that when he returned he found several suits of clothing scattered about the room and the overcoat gone.

Newman's store, at 319 West Fourth street, reported that a suit was taken from the racks in the store Saturday night. It was worth $15.

NEW LIBRARIAN THANKS PAPER FOR ATTITUDE

Expressing appreciation for the cordial welcome received and for the generous amount of space given to book news, Ethel Walker, on behalf of herself and her staff, today addressed a letter to The Register. The letter follows:

"I want to thank you for the cordial welcome which I have received through the news and editorial columns of your paper. It is a reflection of the cordiality and friendliness for which the Southland is renowned, and it has given me much pleasure.

"It has also been most gratifying to me to note the generous amount of space which is given to book news. This is indicative of a widespread and genuine appreciation of books and reading and their value to the people of the community. For, of course, the newspapers are, quite definitely, the key to the scope of interests and activities of the city.

"It is our sincere desire to provide the books which best meet the reading interests of the entire community, both for information and for pleasure. We shall endeavor to anticipate this need to the best of our ability. When failing in this, we shall welcome suggestions from any or all concerning their books interests. In other words the Librarian and the Staff are here to provide books, information and service, and we solicit the co-operation of the public by asking them to make known their desires."

Intimate Group Joins In Gift Shower for Recent Bride

That intimacy which has prevailed ever since school days, among a little group of young matrons, was given charming expression Friday when Mrs. George Bradley was hostess in honor of the latest bride of the group, Mrs. Orville Schuchardt of Long Beach, formerly Miss Doris Rohrbacher.

Mrs. Bradley (Elma McBride) staged her hospitality in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McBride, 1110 Spurgeon street, where a fire, blazing cheerfully on the wide hearth, offset the gloomy weather outside.

The whole decorative scheme stressed this cheerful note, for small tables where a dessert course was served, were charmingly arranged with sprays of cottonseed whose scarlet berries gleamed the brighter from amidst carefully selected leaves. Dominating the small tables, was the dining table from which the dessert course was served, and whose snowy damask was centered with a deep red pottery bowl, nestled in seared bronze grapevine leaves, and filled with glowing fruits.

Mrs. Schuchardt, scoring high in bridehood was a graceful piece of pottery very much in harmony with the gifts with which she was showered later. These gifts by the way, practically completed her set of pottery. To Mrs. William Jennings, with second high contract score, went a similar piece of pottery.

Mrs. Bradley was assisted in all details of entertaining by her mother, Mrs. McBride, while remaining guests in addition to Mrs. Schuchardt, were the latter's mother, Mrs. William Rohrbacher, Mrs. Kenneth Savage (Marjorie Burns), Mrs. Frank Hillman, Mrs. Cecil Sudbury, Mrs. Gilbert Meisinger and Mrs. William Jerome Jr.

Intimate Little Group Enjoys Housewarming

Established in their new home at 907 Lowell street, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Elwell were complimented at a surprise housewarming Friday evening.

Comprising the intimate little group of self-invited guests were Mrs. Iva Griggs and daughter, Miss Helen Griggs, and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Howard and children, Barbara, Dickie and Jimmie, of this city. They had all in readiness for a dinner, which was served to precede other events of the evening.

Double Purpose Served In Party for Bride and House-guest

Actuated by a double motive, a compliment to her cousin's bride, the very charming Mrs. Roderick Smiley (Frances King) and a similar courtesy to her father, J. F. Wharton, recently arrived from Parsons, Kans., to spend the winter here, Mrs. Henry S. Williams Friday presided at a luncheon of striking charm in her home, 518 Kilson drive.

Guests were all members of the family circle, happy to welcome Mr. Wharton, a frequent winter visitor here, and equally pleased at the opportunity to compliment the newest addition to their circle, Mrs. Roderick Smiley. For they made the occasion a bridal shower for her, and it was her privilege to open a large assortment of fascinating packages as the afternoon drew to a close.

Loading up to this happy climax, was the luncheon hour for which Mrs. Williams applied a white and silver motif in true bridal effect. The dining table, with its miniature bride and groom surrounded by slim white tapers in silver candlesticks on silver mats, set the definite note sounded by smaller tables in all their appointments, including white and silver place cards.

The theme was continued in contests introduced for entertainment, and in the wrappings of the prize which rewarded Mrs. Arnold Lund for her prowess.

By no means the least prominent among those brought together to welcome the bride and to greet Mr. Wharton, was the latter's grandson, Master Bobbie Williams, now just a year old, whose merry smile was ready for all his assembled aunts and cousins. The guest list included with Mr. Wharton and the new Mrs. Smiley, the latter's mother, Mrs. E. M. King, and Mr. Smiley's mother, Mrs. Andrew Smiley, Mesdames D. P. McBurney, Will McBurney, Eugene McBurney, Roy Beall, Dean Smiley, Agnes Lund, Howard Lutz, Ray Brown, Retta Cash, Douglas King of Compton, Carlisle King of Long Beach, Miss Vera Cash and Miss Mary Cash.

Earlier Events
Friday's luncheon and shower was latest in a series of parties at which Mrs. Smiley has been honor guest since her marriage on November 2. Prominent in these was a shower planned by her sister workers in the SERRA Administration office.

They enlisted Mr. Smiley's aid in making their plans, and succeeded in maintaining such secrecy that their arrival Wednesday night at the Andrew Smiley home, 1415 North Garvey street, was a total surprise to their honoree. The young people are making their home for the present, with the Andrew Smileys, and Mrs. Smiley offered co-operation in party plans for her son's bride.

Cards were played informally, and late in the evening the self-invited guests produced delicious devilish cake and made coffee to be served with it. They joined in presenting to Mrs. Smiley, a complete set of pottery.

Planning this gay affair were the Misses Katherine Conway, Dorothy Dousier, Alberta Munoz, Doris Pittie, June Naylon, Olive Meehan, Florence Wasson, Blanche Temple, Marian Storm, Ellen Krammes, Gertrude Glockner, Martha Wallingford, Ruth Owens, Nina Bush, Ella Armstrong, Helen Westering, Mesdames Pearl Hyde, O'Brien, Minor Cox, Charles Woodfill, Della Thompson.

In Beach City
Another recent party in the home of Miss Margaret Helm, Huntington Beach, called together a group of close friends with whom she had gone through Huntington Beach High school.

Music, bridge and merriment sped the evening hours, with the hostess serving a dessert course climaxed with the presentation of miscellaneous gifts to the honor guest.

University Women Name Two New Secretaries
Mrs. P. B. Gillespie and Mrs. Russell Sullivan were named recording and corresponding secretaries respectively, for Orange county branch, American Association of University Women, at the meeting of the executive board held last week in Willard school library. Selection of new officers was necessitated by the resignation of the Misses Dorothy Wentz and Marie Moog, elected to those positions last spring.

Plans were tentatively drawn for the program of the year, and decision was made that in place of devoting one regular meeting to a discussion of scientific consumer purchasing as was announced at the last gathering, a special meeting will be called for all who are interested in the subject. Mrs. Robert Horn will be in charge for

Fiftieth Anniversary Is Occasion Of Happy Celebration

A golden half century of married life was rounded out yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. Matt Raymond, 3635 North Broadway, when they were honored at an anniversary dinner in the Doris Kathryn, planned by members of their family circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, who have lived in Santa Ana since 1932, spent the greater part of their married life in Minnesota where Mr. Raymond was a prominent building contractor with headquarters in Sleepy Eye, the city named for an Indian chieftain. It was in New Ulin, Minnesota, on November 34, 1885, that Mary Ann McRae and Matt Raymond were married. They lived in Minnesota until Mr. Raymond's retirement from active business life in 1928 when they came to California, living first in Alhambra.

Three of their five children were unable to be present for the golden wedding, one daughter, Mrs. G. W. Christensen of Oelwein, Iowa, and two sons, Harry Raymond, living near Downey, and Dr. A. C. Raymond of Alhambra, Texas.

Miss Alice Raymond of the home, and Mr. and Mrs. William Megaw, son-in-law and daughter, of Alhambra, were present however, to celebrate the important anniversary, in which they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond's niece, Mrs. O. H. Tracy and her son Jim, of Portland, Ore., and a grandnephew, Robert Jewett, also of Portland, but a student at California Institute of Technology.

Dinner was served at mid-day at a table centered with a handsomely decorated wedding cake, nestled in sweet peas. Many gifts were presented the honor guests, together with flowers and greeting cards from friends in distant states. Mrs. Tracy and her son drove down from their Portland home two weeks ago, especially for the anniversary, and will remain until after Thanksgiving.

Coming as the second of a series of programs opened early in the season was a recent event in the home of Mrs. John L. Wehrd, 2411 North Park boulevard. An interpretation of the book, "Deep Dark River," given by Mrs. Ruth Cornell Fuller, of Los Angeles, and a talk by Silvano Balboni, of Los Angeles, were features of the evening.

Local Program Series Continue As Christmas Plans Made

Plans were made for a benefit program to be presented Saturday, December 14, at 8 p. m. in First Methodist social hall, when Mrs. Fuller will review the biography of Henry Van Dyke, author of "The Three Wise Men," "The Other Wise Man" and other works. The affair will be open to the public, and proceeds will be used for Christmas welfare work.

For the recent meeting, Mr. Balboni, who is United States representative, educator of the League of Nations, gave a lecture on Italy and Ethiopia. In serving tea, Mrs. Edgar McCoubrey, of Los Angeles, and Miss Mildred Spicer, of this city.

Reception Compliments Conductor of Choir After Recital

Last night's delightful concert by the Humana Symphony A Capella choir of Fullerton Junior college, in First M. E. church, had a sequel which was no less pleasant although shared by a much smaller group. For Mrs. Frankie King, 1421 North Main street, afforded some of her friends an opportunity to meet Benjamin Edwards, director, and Mrs. Edwards, at a post-recital reception in her home.

This was an especially thoughtful gesture of hospitality on the part of Mrs. King, for since Mr. Edwards' appointment as director of Santa Ana Cantando club, he has become quite as prominent in local musical circles as in those of the north part of the county. For his musical abilities are not confined to Fullerton Junior college alone, but are apparent in various organizations.

Naturally then, in planning a social affair to compliment him, Mrs. King gave it a musical tone, and there were various song groups at intervals during the evening. Mr. Edwards himself contributed one of these groups, singing songs of his own composition to the piano accompaniment of Miss Ruth Armstrong. Lorene Croddy Graves added a second group with Halstead McCormack as her accompanist, and Stanley Kurtz of Buena Park, accompanied by Mrs. Kurtz, sang baritone numbers.

Mrs. King used quantities of bronze yellow chrysanthemums about her home, and made her reception table especially lovely by filling a crystal bowl with the golden blossoms, and using slim golden candles in crystal candlesticks. Presiding at the handsome silver tea and coffee urns were Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Kurtz and Mrs. W. B. Williams. Miss Jane King, Mrs. Lynn C. Graves (Lorene Croddy Graves) and Mrs. Virgil Clem assisted throughout the evening.

Among those given opportunity to meet the honor guest were Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brownridge, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Slabough, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. George Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Layton, Glen Layton, and Mrs. Ray Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Pritchard, Mr. Virginia Pritchard, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn C. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kurtz, Mrs. Virgil Clem, Mrs. Pearl Hyde, Mrs. Emily Munro, Miss Jean Munroe, Miss Ruth Armstrong, Mrs. Mabel Spizky, the Rev. W. J. Hatter, Halstead McCormack.

Old Friends Celebrate Eightieth Birthday Anniversary

The eightieth year of an eventful life was marked for Mrs. Ida McClintock with a handkerchief shower given for her last week by one of her closest friends, Mrs. R. L. Tedford, 215 South Birch street.

Mrs. McClintock, who was born in Iowa, came to California 43 years ago, and has lived in Greenview and in Santa Ana for the past 27 years. She has four sons and one daughter living at various points in the Southland.

Several friends had brought with their shower gifts, further expressions of their good wishes in flowers, and especially noted were those brought by Mrs. J. C. Segerstrom and the camellias presented by Mrs. E. M. Redmond.

The Tedford home was festive with chrysanthemums in varied shades, and the afternoon was spent in visiting and recalling past experiences. Refreshments of ice cream in pumpkin molds and birthday cake were served.

Guests included with Mrs. McClintock, Mesdames A. T. Cole, E. S. Wakeham, and Louise Griest, all of whom are more than 80 years old, J. C. Segerstrom, Ed. SOCIETY

MIXING BOWL

THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING

Twenty-four sandwiches can be made from an unsliced pullman loaf...and that's a lovely thought for those of us who hate climbing over thick slices of bread.

One quart of well whipped cream (3 cups unwhipped) will yield 25 heaped spoonfuls. Again, let's paint the lily by removing some of those bothersome fat calories; whip 1 1/2 cups heavy cream very stiff and whip three egg whites equally stiff, adding to them five tablespoons of powdered sugar. Combine the two, and count the calories at exactly a half of the original.

Potato chips: two pounds will serve 25 people. Not when the 25 or any part of the 25, sit and play cards all evening and dip in to the chipped potato bowl with a wandering hand.

Chicken salad: three pints will serve 25 people. And while you are cooking the chicken for the salad, don't forget to add a chunk of veal to be used later for "chicken salad sandwiches." Run the chicken-flavored veal through the grinder with a little celery and suspicion of onion. Add chopped hard boiled eggs and mayonnaise.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Baked apple, or large glass of seasoned tomato juice
Creole scrambled egg
1 slice dry toast
1 cup coffee with 1/4 cup hot skimmed milk, no sugar
Calory total...310

Creole scrambled egg is a welcome change from eggs-eggs-eggs! To make, put a square of butter into a small skillet, add half of a diced ripe tomato, or three tablespoons thick canned tomato, a bit of chopped green pepper, dash of celery salt and cayenne. Cook until piping hot (10 minutes) add the unbeaten egg, stir fast until cooked...that's all, but you'll wish it were more.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Oyster Stuffing for Turkey
3 small loaves of stale bread
1 cup melted butter and
1/2 cup bacon fat
1 quart oysters
2 eggs
Cut crusts from loaf, slice, pour boiling water over and immediately drain. Squeeze as dry as possible, crumbling the bread. Mix with the hot butter and bacon fat, season highly and add the beaten eggs and a little milk if too dry. Carefully mix the washed oysters through the dressing, fill the bird not too full, and sew in place.

The first time I saw a turkey with a sausage neckpiece was in an English home where I was a guest at Christmas time. I was told that the sausage basted the turkey while the turkey seasoned the sausage...altogether a very swell idea.

Another grand way to bake the turkey, duck, or whatever bird is used, is to get a large sheet of thin membranous suet from the butcher and wrap the bird in it, first dredging bird with flour, salt and pepper. Sew the suet sheet in place and forget your worries about a dry bird. Baste occasionally, however.

In case any turkey is left over, put it safely away for Turkey Turovers.

Chop the turkey meat fine and add enough gravy to moisten it well. Then get down your box of prepared biscuit flour, put a heaped cupful in a bowl and rub in 2 extra tablespoons of butter. Add milk to make a stiff dough, knead and roll very thin. Cut 4 inch squares, put a big spoonful of turkey on one side, fold over and pinch edge with a fork. Bake in a fast oven and serve with sliced cranberry jelly.

Tuesday: Frozen pineapple punch to serve with the meat course and a luscious squash soufflé to be baked in a casserole, or in individual buttered paper muffin cups. —ANN MEREDITH

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

WRIGLEY'S IS FRESH AS A NEW DAY

"Hurrah!" cried Duncy. "This is fun! Just watch the funny ant horse run. He gallops for a while, and then he breaks into a trot."

"We don't know where we're heading for, nor just what new sights are in store, but everything is going to be all right, as like as not."

"I'm not so sure," the hopper said. "If I were on the ground, instead of in this crazy carriage, I'd, at least, feel safe and sound."

"Unless you hold me back, I fear that I will jump right out of here," just then the hopper and wee Duncy heard a funny sound.

"Why, look! A turtle," Duncy said. "A funny hat is on his head." Then the little fellow he exclaimed, "Hey! Howdy do!"

The turtle snapped right back, "Hello. I know where you are going to go. Some other tots are up ahead. They're waiting there for you."

And then the turtle disappeared, and Duncy shouted, "Gee, I'm cheered. I'm sure the tots he spoke of are the other Tynymites."

"Now, hopper, if you'll stick with me, all of my friends you'll shortly see. Please don't be scared. Why, I have been in lots of much worse plights."

"Okay," the hopper said. "You win. I'll hang on tight and stay right in this carriage, but I hope that we stop racing very soon."

"How long have we been dashing 'bout? Twice early, when we started out, and now, I'll bet you anything, it's pretty close to noon."

"Forget it," Duncy loudly cried. "Right now we're going to end this ride. I see the Tynymites, and they have seen us coming, too."

They pulled up to the wee tots and fair Goldy shouted, "This is grand! Where did you get the wagon, Duncy? That is something new!"

ETHIOPIANS CLAIM ROUT OF ITALIANS

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Ethiopians claimed the rout of three Italian battalions on the northern front today, with more than 100 Italians killed.

An official communique said the fight occurred near Hawale, north of Makale on the northern front. The three Italian battalions, it was asserted, had plundered a village and had encamped preparatory to feasting on captured cattle.

Ethiopians under the Daddaj-mach Worese, it was said, surprised the Italians in a defile in the mountains, attacked furiously and killed the commander and more than 100 men, according to the estimate of those present. The remainder of the Italians were put to flight, it was said, and eight horses and 13 mules laden with ammunition were captured.

This claimed victory was impossible to confirm, as usual.

The communique which announced it was a sequel to a statement yesterday which said 4,700 Italians had been killed on the northern front alone in the last two weeks.

This came from usually well-informed semi-official sources. It was said also that more than 1000 rifles and 40 machine guns with ammunition were captured.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—(UP)—R. P. Smith, cashier of the Hollywood Citizen-News, was held up in front of the film city postoffice by two bandits today and robbed of $4755, the newspaper's payroll.

Smith was walking from a bank to the newspaper office when the bandits' automobile drew up at the curb at the intersection of Selma and Wilcox avenues, near the heart of downtown Hollywood.

One robber stepped out, snatched a brief case containing the payroll while menacing Smith with a revolver, then leaped back into the car which sped away and was lost in traffic.

State Sets Record Auto Registration

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 25.—(UP)—California registered more automobiles during the first 10 months of this year than they ever did in any one previous 12-month period.

Registration figures for the 10 months ended October 31 showed a total of 2,198,000 vehicles, eclipsing the previous annual record of 2,107,275 registered in 1931. There were 102,173 more automobiles registered during the period than there were during the first 10 months of 1934.

Motor Vehicle Department officials believed the increase gave definite evidence of a decided upward trend in business and industry.

"We just wanted to see it burn," they are reported to have stated. The other men have waived their preliminary examinations and have been held to answer to the higher court.

DOES ELEPHANT EVER FORGET? TRAINER PUZZLES NO LONGER

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 25.—(UP)—With a derrier, yards of tackle, a corps of policemen and a prayer, Joseph Zweekar planned to learn today if it is true that an elephant never forgets.

The experiment may cost him a 10-ton truck, but then hay costs money too. And Zweekar didn't embark on the test for pure science; sake, the elephant forced it upon him.

Zweekar, whose home is in Allendale, N. C., was sent by the Gorman Brothers circus yesterday to transport Jap, an 8700-pound bull elephant, from an advertising assignment in Irvington, N. J., back to circus quarters at Pompano Lakes, N. J. Jap and Zweekar are old friends and the driver had no trouble marching him into the trailer of his big truck.

But at a corner in East Orange Zweekar made a sharp turn. Simultaneously Jap shifted his weight about 15 inches east. The trailer lifted on two wheels, snapped loose from the truck cab, and smashed on its side.

Five hundred small boys and girls, an equal number of adults and half the East Orange police force cooperated. Zweekar and some policemen gingerly freed Jap of leg chains. He lumbered to his feet and helped the men right the trailer.

A blacksmith re-linked the cab and the trailer. Zweekar then told Jap to mount. Jap refused. If Zweekar commanded a walk to the corner and back, hoping to get up a momentum that would carry him up the gangplank into the truck, Jap walked obediently. But at the gangplank foot, three dozen times or more, Jap barked.

A housewife volunteered that she knew "just what that elephant needs" and proffered a slice of zwiebach. Jap took the full box and an arm off her apron. The woman fell into hysterics.

Zweekar said to the policemen "That's enough" and by fast talk induced a garage to store his elephant at space rates.

Today Zweekar said he's put that elephant in a truck if it was the last thing he did. He went off early to rent a derrier.

That the business man of America has had a serious shock that he planted unconscious fear in him, and that he must face the facts of today and fight a way through to a realization that business must and will go ahead, was the message brought the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce today by Bruce Findlay, director of public relations for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, speaking on "The Psychology of Fear."

"The psychologist," he said, "has done a lot to free people from unconscious fear they have had. Right psychology of business and life is the most important factor in the permanent business recovery, he stated.

America at the present time, he said, is suffering from all kinds of complexes caused by the economic upheaval of the business crash. Fear, he said, gets hold of a man by slipping into his unconsciousness, and causes him to have a distorted view of all parts of his life. "The fear," he said, "which is causing us to stand before a mirror in a business crazy-house, is the result of a great shock to the American nervous system."

Work for Salvation. We must sit down and take stock, he said, of ourselves, business and souls. "I do not believe that the whole foundation of American business can be thrown out at this time. We must admit the last five years have been hard. We must now take a re-evaluation, a physical and spiritual inventory, face the facts, and go to work on our salvation."

One of the great causes of the continued slump in business, according to Findlay, is the vast increase in class-consciousness, and the tremendous load of caring for the unemployed and unemployed. "We have allowed the feeling of class-consciousness to take hold of us, and in order to rid ourselves of it, we must find a way to put these thousands of people to work."

"American business," he concluded, "on trial right now. We are at the bar, and the burden of proof, that business can be made to work by itself, is upon us."

Frank Henderson, superintendent of Santa Ana schools, presided in the absence of President W. H. Spurgeon. J. C. Horton introduced the speaker. Preceding the talk of the day Ray Goodell reported on the current membership campaign, and instructed several new members of the chamber.

'OLD MAIDS' SEEK PARIS HUSBANDS

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Giggling French girls who have passed their 25th birthdays without marrying exchanged confidences today as "bachelorette" in which they engaged yesterday in observance of St. Catherine's Day.

For "Old Maids Day" bestows privileges upon the young men as well as upon the unmarried mademoiselles.

It is the one day in the year on which the French girl has the privilege of asking the man of her choice to become her husband. It is also the day on which any young man may with propriety kiss a young woman who is a complete stranger to him—provided she is wearing the "old maid's bonnet" of linen, lace and green and yellow ribbons as a symbol that she is not adverse to romantic dalliance.

Catherine's, as celebrants of the day are known, trooped along the boulevards all day and late into the night, their gay headresses proclaiming that they would not be too soon with any cavalier who took their fancy.

St. Catherine's Day dates back to the time when an unmarried girl of 25 gave up all hope of betrothal and donned the special bonnet which marked her for a spinster.

A Burger-Goodlett frock! Nancy's big eyes widened in amazement. This was something, indeed. Oh, it was going to be grand to appear in something besides that everlasting pink rag, to feel decently dressed for once in one's life.

"We're having Hattie Washington do the catering," Aunt Ellen announced, her eyes shining. "I can't stand any more," Nancy said. "I simply can't." She knew this extravagance was wickedly reckless. But if grandmother had suddenly gone haywire and was determined to send them all straight to the poor house, at least Nancy intended to enjoy a moment while the spending

STATE OFFICIAL TO BE HEARD TUESDAY

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Fred W. Links, state finance department superintendent of accounts and one of the central figures in the current wave of financial investigations that has rocked the capital, will be given a preliminary hearing at 2 p. m. tomorrow on charges that he made personal use of state funds.

Links posted $1500 cash bail Saturday night after he had learned he was named in a complaint signed by Assemblyman Leon M. Donihue, chairman of a special legislative investigating committee. The complaint accused Links of violating the penal code by using the finance department's revolving fund for making personal purchases.

Donihue indicated he may sign similar complaints against other officials or employees who have used state credit or funds for personal benefit.

POLICE ACCUSED AS ROBBER GANG

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Authorities were to file second degree burglary charges in Superior court today against six policemen, a National Guard sergeant and a county employee who allegedly were members of a band of criminals operating in Seattle for weeks.

Officials asserted the men had admitted receiving property stolen in two robberies. The policemen, authorities alleged, used a radio prowl car to haul away loot and called police headquarters to determine movements of other policemen who might stumble upon the ring's activities.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Ben B. Lindsey, former Denver juvenile judge and now a Los Angeles superior judge, expressed gratification today at his reinstatement to the Colorado bar.

"I have already been vindicated by the people of Colorado and California."

"In Colorado I have been vindicated by the defeat of every one of the judges that took part in that disbarment proceedings, who thus far have come before the people seeking reelection."

With All My Love

Marie announced, "Guess who is out there?"

"Too hot for guesswork."

"Your perfectly knockout sister."

"My sister?" Nancy dropped her eyes for a moment. "Oh—Dana. I'd forgotten she planned to go out this afternoon."

"You should have been there to see the hit she made. Boys swarming around her like bees. Ronnie wasn't any too pleased about it, either. He had that terribly proprietary manner, I suppose, just because he'd brought her out. We homeowners haven't a chance. Gosh, Nancy, if I had a sister like that, I'd have kept her across the ocean!"

"Would you?" Nancy queried indifferently. She started the car just then—and for once didn't mind its protesting roar, mixed with a number of rattles. They helped to drown out Marie's parting shot.

"What do I care?" Nancy asked herself furiously, driving blindly for the moment.

The day had turned gloomy. All the heady excitement that had sent her on her way to the dress shop was gone.

She thought dreadingly of Dana, walking into the country club with Ronald Moore, cutting a wide swathe without even trying. It had always been so difficult for Nancy herself. Of course there was always Tommy McNamee hanging around with his pale hair and pale eyes that blinked, but that was almost worse than having no one hanging around at all. Tommy was a perennial thorn in Nancy's self-esteem. He was the one definite proof of her social failure.

For no girl who had anyone else for an escort would ever allow Tommy around.

But if Tommy weren't with you, you wouldn't be there at all. So you went with him, goaded and played tennis victoriously and acted as though you were having a perfectly swell time.

The dress could go hang, Nancy decided. At least for this afternoon it could.

She turned the car at the next corner and headed for home. On the way she passed Scott Stanley and Paula Long. "Nancy thought, "More strangers coming to town."

Not, of course, that Scott and Paula were strangers, because both were natives. Scott "had been away for years, though. She had heard last week that he had come through medical school with honors and was heading home to begin his practice. Which was sensible, of course. A young doctor could always count on a few ready-made patients in his home city. Especially a young doctor who was popular, and Scott Stanley had always been popular.

Paula, who had been sickeningly in love with Scott for so long,

"My sister?" Nancy dropped her eyes for a moment. "Oh—Dana. I'd forgotten she planned to go out this afternoon."

"You should have been there to see the hit she made. Boys swarming around her like bees. Ronnie wasn't any too pleased about it, either. He had that terribly proprietary manner, I suppose, just because he'd brought her out. We homeowners haven't a chance. Gosh, Nancy, if I had a sister like that, I'd have kept her across the ocean!"

"Would you?" Nancy queried indifferently. She started the car just then—and for once didn't mind its protesting roar, mixed with a number of rattles. They helped to drown out Marie's parting shot.

"What do I care?" Nancy asked herself furiously, driving blindly for the moment.

The day had turned gloomy. All the heady excitement that had sent her on her way to the dress shop was gone.

She thought dreadingly of Dana, walking into the country club with Ronald Moore, cutting a wide swathe without even trying. It had always been so difficult for Nancy herself. Of course there was always Tommy McNamee hanging around with his pale hair and pale eyes that blinked, but that was almost worse than having no one hanging around at all. Tommy was a perennial thorn in Nancy's self-esteem. He was the one definite proof of her social failure.

For no girl who had anyone else for an escort would ever allow Tommy around.

But if Tommy weren't with you, you wouldn't be there at all. So you went with him, goaded and played tennis victoriously and acted as though you were having a perfectly swell time.

The dress could go hang, Nancy decided. At least for this afternoon it could.

She turned the car at the next corner and headed for home. On the way she passed Scott Stanley and Paula Long. "Nancy thought, "More strangers coming to town."

Not, of course, that Scott and Paula were strangers, because both were natives. Scott "had been away for years, though. She had heard last week that he had come through medical school with honors and was heading home to begin his practice. Which was sensible, of course. A young doctor could always count on a few ready-made patients in his home city. Especially a young doctor who was popular, and Scott Stanley had always been popular.

Paula, who had been sickeningly in love with Scott for so long,

Marie announced, "Guess who is out there?"

"Too hot for guesswork."

"Your perfectly knockout sister."

"My sister?" Nancy dropped her eyes for a moment. "Oh—Dana. I'd forgotten she planned to go out this afternoon."

Meet At Houston To Settle Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady announced today that the mediation board for the Gulf coast longshoremen's strike would meet tomorrow at Houston, Tex.

McGrady said the board named Saturday by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins would meet for organization purposes in Houston. McGrady who will be in Boston tomorrow will fly direct to Houston, leaving Boston at 7 a. m. Wednesday morning to participate in the deliberations.

Representatives of the longshoremen and most of the shipowners have agreed informally to confer with the board in an effort to obtain a solution of the deadlock which has hampered Gulf coast shipping for several weeks.

FASCISM WARNING ISSUED BY LABOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(UP)—An optimistic picture of business was couched by the American Federation of Labor today with a warning that the nation might be swept into Fascism during the next depression unless industrialists prepare now to insure workers' jobs in the lean years.

The Federation saw increasing business confidence, which it predicted would result in another boom. Industrial production, retail trade and building construction have advanced, it noted, and farmers' incomes are higher.

In its monthly business survey, the labor organization reported that workers lost $15,200,000,000 in the last five years, while "all others," including business men, suffered losses of $40,500,000,000 as a result of the economic storm.

Charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, William E. Gault, 46, of 281 Halverson avenue, Fullerton, was booked at the county jail Saturday by Fullerton officers.

He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or serve 30 days in jail on the charge and elected the jail sentence.

SAN CLEMENTE COMES BACK

An example of what can be accomplished when warring factions unite for a common good is shown in San Clemente, the Spanish Village on the Southern shores of Orange county. A month ago the city council of San Clemente faced bankruptcy. The city fathers even went so far as to announce that due to the financial condition of the city treasury it would be necessary to curb all expenses to such an extent that the fire and police departments were ordered abandoned on December 1. Street lights were to be cut off and everything done away with but necessary water for home consumption.

Then it was that the Bank of America came to the rescue of the impoverished city and paid up enough back taxes to carry on and announced that further funds would be forthcoming.

The council then went to work. Newspapermen of Southern California were invited to spend the weekend in the Spanish Village. They were shown the possibilities for growth. They were taken into the confidence of the city at a dinner at which one of the high officials of the Bank of America promised that San Clemente would be placed on a "going basis." The net result of this meeting was plenty of favorable publicity.

This weekend the Spanish Village will be hosts to thousands at a Spanish Fiesta. Here again the beauties and wonders of the little seaside town will be broadcast. More favorable publicity will be forthcoming.

San Clemente is coming back and all Orange county will get behind the city fathers in their courageous endeavor to "come out of the red."

COMPROMISE BRINGS DEFEAT

Ramsay MacDonald stands today as a tragic example of the thing that can happen to a man who stops fighting and starts to compromise.

His party has disowned him, his old supporters are his bitter enemies, and he is no longer a member of Parliament—this man who, only a decade ago, sent his voice across England like a horn of Roland to rally people for a better social order.

During the war MacDonald's name was one with which good patriots could frighten small children. MacDonald saw the war as a racket, from the start, said so, and paid for it heavily.

All the scorn and unpopularity that a united nation can visit upon a dissenter were poured on his head. When he sought to go to Sweden to discuss peace with workers' representatives from the central powers, English seamen went on strike and refused to carry him. He was an outcast.

But he was also a fighter. He stuck by his guns, refusing to give up his principles, no matter how hard the storm. And in a few years he had his reward.

War-time hatred turned to peace-time admiration. He led his Labor Party to great gains; and at last he became prime minister of England, first representative of his class to sit where Pitt and Gladstone had sat.

And then something happened. Ramsay MacDonald, who had fought like grim death for his principles a short time before began, now, to compromise. A Socialist, he began to act like a conservative representative of the propertied class; a pacifist, he followed as premier policies indistinguishable from those of his predecessors who had hated pacifism.

English Laborites accused him of selling out. The words are too harsh. It is so fatally easy to justify a policy of compromise; to point out that half a loaf is better than no bread, and that the leader of a minority party must proceed very slowly, when he attains a position of power.

So MacDonald compromised, and what happened after that is something that no politician can afford to overlook.

His party deserted him. In the recent campaign he was heckled so viciously that he was never able to complete a speech. He was snowed under, at last, falling of re-election to Parliament by a vote of more than two to one. Today his career is ended, to all intents and purposes.

Once he stood alone against the world for a principle—and his nation came to love him for it. Later on he compromised, and forgot that magnificent ability to tell the world to go to blazes if it didn't like him—and the result is complete and lasting defeat.

He is the most tragic political figure of the day—an unforgettable example of the disaster which comes upon a fighter who stops fighting.

REBUILDING A HERITAGE

It was 60 years ago that the federal government first spent any money to conserve and build up its great forest heritage. In 1876 Congress appropriated $2000 so that a forest agent could begin looking into the conditions of American forests. Next year, by way of an anniversary celebration, the biggest tree-planting program the nation ever saw is to be pushed forward.

The great shelter-belt program in the grain states will hit its full stride in 1936, with 75,000,000 seedling trees to be planted along a 1400-mile stretch of land running from Texas to the Canadian line.

In addition, the U. S. Forest Service and the CCC are going ahead with a program which in 1935 has already resulted in setting out 220,000,000 young trees in our national forests.

All in all, it is a great program. After having wasted his forest heritage for decades, Uncle Sam is at last taking effective steps to preserve it.

STUBBORN PROBLEM

One of the oddest things about the present improvement in business conditions is the fact that employment is reviving faster than the relief rolls are shrinking.

In the city of Cleveland, for instance, unemployment dropped from 76,000 on Oct. 1 to 58,600 on Nov. 1, making the number of unemployed smaller than it has been at any time since 1930. Yet the relief rolls are showing no corresponding shrinkage.

Counting WPA employees as relief clients, Cleveland had a reduction of only 3400 in its relief lists during the period when the number of unemployed was reduced by more than 17,000.

This seems to indicate that our relief problem will lag with us for some time after our industrial conditions have got nearly back to normal.

We shall still be caring for the casualties of the depression after the depression has been finally defeated.

Sayings Of Will Rogers

Well, Russia hasn't got football but you can tune in over there and get your favorite confession:

"This is station C-O-U-R-T, broadcasting by Stalin control. You are about to listen to eight ex-comrades. These eight well known boys are leaving us soon, but they are putting on a farewell program under the auspices of the Soviet Republic to try and impress their fellow citizens that anytime you plan a revolution you better be on the winning side. From time to time we will broadcast similar proceedings. Just an educational feature. The boys wish you good-night, and also good-bye."

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The long-expected break in the ranks of American labor has come. It may profoundly influence the course of economic recovery. It may affect the fortunes of President Roosevelt in the coming campaign for re-election. It may have a host of other effects, such as on labor legislation and social policy.

For it is the beginning of a struggle which will either wind up with government control and domination of labor unions or domination of congress and the presidency by a labor dictatorship.

The counsel of careful reasoning, temperate, well-poised men like William Green and Matthew Woll has failed to keep John Lewis, head of the Miners' union, from staking everything on an ambition to put the industrial union idea into the American Federation of Labor at all costs, irrespective of the opposition manifested by the craft unions.

To the layman the differences and advantages involved in a craft union or an industrial union may not be apparent. Labor experts may debate at length on the respective merits of each. Industrial unions are composed of all the workers in a given industry, whether they are skilled or not and regardless of their crafts. This has been called a vertical set-up.

The so-called crafts unions are horizontal and cut across different industries and companies, so that all are members of the same craft.

Today the A. F. of L. is dominated by the craft unions, but a substantial minority is determined to change the nature and make-up of the executive council of the A. F. of L. using the industrial union as the unit of membership in that council.

Naturally, the officers of the crafts unions, both in the top groups and in the various locals scattered throughout the country, see themselves wiped out of the picture and do not like it. The employers are divided in their views as to the wisdom or unwisdom of industrial unions. They would lean toward that system which insured responsibility of leadership and sanctity of contract and a minimum of disturbance through strikes.

Employers, therefore, will be interested onlookers as well as victims of the fighting. It will take the form of aggressive membership campaigns. Already, John Lewis has gathered to his side a number of union officials and they have set aside a fund from their own treasuries to carry on the battle. Aligned with Mr. Lewis are the heads of the clothing workers, ladies garment workers, textile workers, oil field, gas and refinery workers, mine, mill and smelter workers, military workers and typographical unions.

The first skirmish is going on in the automobile industry, where Mr. Lewis and his cohorts have started to develop an industrial union, arguing that Mr. Green's tactics and craft union policies have failed to budge the aloofness of the employee organizations that exist in the various individual companies. Since the strike weapon is an inevitable counterpart of the strategy of membership getting, the prospects of trouble in the auto field at a time when the industry is moving ahead so splendidly cannot but force opinion among the workers to resist efforts on the part of the industrial union agitators to bring them into new union quarrels.

If the effect of the schism is to open wide the eyes of the people to the dangers of labor bureaucracy, it may result in legislation imposing greater and greater responsibilities on labor unions, perhaps even federal or state incorporation. This would not be to the liking of Mr. Green and his group any more than to Mr. Lewis. But it is the price that may have to be paid if union labor's quarrel becomes an impediment to recovery and reemployment.

So far as politics is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt will suffer from the division in the ranks of labor. John Lewis has been in high favor with the president, who regards him as a strong-minded leader. Mr. Lewis has already begun to pay back the debt he owes Mr. Roosevelt for his espousal of the Guffey coal law. In Kentucky, for instance, John Lewis took the stump recently, and, it is understood, claims his full share of credit for the 95,000 Democratic majority in that state at a moment when the other states were voting Republican.

The labor war has been coming on for several weeks. It cropped out, of course, at the convention of the A. F. of L. last month in Atlantic City. The Green supporters say John Lewis has never made a success as a labor organizer and would not today be in a position of strength were it not for the fact that, through the Guffey act, Mr. Roosevelt handed John Lewis 500,000 new members on a platter. The large membership is enabling Mr. Lewis to carry his fight aggressively for domination of the A. F. of L.

Well, Now That's Settled

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

IF ONLY DREAMS CAME TRUE

Bob wants to own an elephant,
A great gallumping elephant,
On which to ride
With pomp and pride
Here, there and to and fro.
He'd like to have it bend its knee
In deference to you and me,
And hear men shout
Bob's praises out
Wherever he might go.
He'd like to own a tiger, too—
No many tiger from a zoo—
But one who's wretch
Of wicked teeth
Would terrify the crowd;
This feral beast he soon would tame,
And make it answer to its name,
And when in rage
It paced its cage,
Young Bob would sure be proud.

But tigers, I am told, will eat
Each morning fifty pounds of meat;
And, when comes night
Their appetite
Is harder still to satiate;
And since I haven't got a cent
To pay the grocer or the rent
This coming year,
I sadly fear
That Bob will have to wait.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

LET CAPITALISM BE ITSELF

I tire a bit of reading daily obituaries announcing the death of capitalism.

Authentic capitalism has not seen given a chance for some time. The dominant mark of authentic capitalism is courage—courage to make investment, courage to take risks, courage to take the long chance in which capital invested may either reap rich rewards or be utterly lost.

Authentic capitalism is amazingly flexible. But I repeat—we have not seen authentic capitalism in operation for some time.

Private enterprise and authentic capitalism are by no means one and the same thing.

Capitalism has lost its courage and—both upon its own initiative and by governmental action—been denuded of much of its flexibility.

Government—sometimes under conservative and sometimes under liberal political administrations—has intervened to do three things which, whatever way they are looked at, make capitalism something less than itself. These three things are, viz:

(1) Measures that tend to guarantee profit to capital investment.

Such measures are to be found even in the "liberal" legislation of the National Recovery Act. It is through this heresy—heresy if measured against capitalism in its original form—that capitalism has lost its courage. Capitalism ceases to be capitalism when it begs for crutches, asks that its risks be underwritten, that its profit be in any measure guaranteed.

(2) Measures that tend to fix prices and make rigid other factors through which capitalism has hitherto been able flexibly to adjust itself to changing conditions.

There is a real case against a perverted kind of competition, competition that is unfair because of arbitrary arrangements made either by government or by private enterprisers. There is not, and there never has been, a sound case against authentic competition which is a competition in excellence and efficiency.

(3) Measures that tend to keep alive and even subsidize directly or, indirectly the weak and inefficient units of our economic life.

Before we sign the death certificate of capitalism, let us give it a chance to be itself again. We may find, as I think we shall, that much of the breakdown of so-called capitalism is due to these disloyalties to its central principles.

WHY BLAME MOTHERS?

"If my mother made me study," sighed Bill, "if she had made me practice my music, my life would not be as it is. Her neglect has cheated me. My gift is gone. I am the victim of parental neglect." I don't believe it. Living with thousands and thousands of children for years, I have learned some things about them. Very definite things. One of them is that when a child possesses a talent, for writing, for drawing, for science, for mathematics, he hungers and thirsts after it. He drives himself and everybody he meets. A music-hungry child does not need to be forced to practice. The struggle we have with such children is to get them to spread some of their enthusiasm among other branches of education so that they may not grow lopsided and their talent be stunted by too much of one thing.

Mother is not to blame for the failure. It takes more than a wish to be great to make an artist. What the boy says isn't true. There wasn't a chance in a thousand that he would have been a musician. His criticism of his mother was absolutely unjustified, without rhyme or reason. That boy didn't want to learn music. He wanted to do something else and he did it in spite of his mother. Probably the only way he could have been forced to practice was to put him under lock and key and feed him on bread and water. The chances are mother did all she could. She told him what to do, gave him a chance and encouraged him whenever she could. His life after that was in his own hands, and he made a failure of it. And now it isn't sporting to blame his mother.

It is easy to blame mothers for the shortcomings of the children. "If his mother had made him work, if his mother had made him practice, if his mother had taught him to study, if his mother had made him go to church, if his mother had only kept him out of bad company." It sounds absurd, and it is. Mothers would, if they could, do all things.

When a child says, "My mother is to blame for my failure," he is adding insult to injury. Nobody ever failed because his mother wanted him to. In this age of speeding cars, moving pictures, radios, new codes, new ways, idle hours, mothers are standing on the side lines praying and hoping and working for the best. To blame them is ungrateful, stupid. Most mothers are wise with the wisdom of the ages. They know that no good comes of nagging, of forcing. They guide and protect and encourage. They can do no more. Children must go along under their own steam or not at all. Force in the shape of a domineering mother cannot inspire them to industry nor help them to scale the heights.

"If my mother had made me work I would have been a success," is the cry of a weakling.

Here and There

Among the 14,763 persons holding pilots' licenses on Oct. 1, 1935, there were 737 transport, 969 limited commercial, 8775 private, 638 amateur and four industrial pilots.

Parachutes may be repacked only by a federally licensed parachute rigger, or by an army or navy rigger.

Seventy-one United States flying clubs are registered by the U. S. Department of Commerce as airplane owners, although many more have ships registered in names of individual owners.

Because army flyers are permitted only 32 bombs each year for accuracy tests, and another 32 for recorded flight, concrete bombs are used to practice bombing.

A Danish inventor has produced a ray which he claims can bring down airplanes at a distance of 750 miles.

Reports from the Department of Commerce indicate that the average monthly pay for first pilots is $524. Co-pilots average $201 a month.

Pilots approaching federal airway beacons can see the source of light that is visible each time the rotating light points toward them while 30 or 40 miles away, but they cannot observe the beam until they are close to the beacon.

When Howard Hughes recently broke the world's record for land planes, his ship was clocked by an elaborate electrical system which included a telephone, printing chronograph, and camera.

A new ruling by the Department of Commerce states that intentional instrument flights in broken clouds or overcast sky within 25 miles of an airway, or within 25 miles of an air line airport may be made only by line aircraft.

Most privately owned planes require new motors after 1500 hours of operation.

Of all automobiles sold in the United States last year, 95 per cent were marketed for less than $750 wholesale.
